Library Databases for Journal Articles:

Alternate log in:
Username: whiteplains
Password: tigers

Other Resource for Journal Articles (Note: Some of these articles are not free)
Google Scholar https://scholar.google.com/

In one sentence, what is the question you are trying to answer?
________________________________________________________________________________
________________________________________________________________________________
________________________________________________________________________________

Step 1: Break your question down into keywords.
Look at your question above. Write at least 3 keywords here that you could use to conduct a database search that answers your question.
Note: Put any phrases you want to keep together in quotes (i.e. “child labor” or “minimum wage”)
________________________________________________________________________________
________________________________________________________________________________
________________________________________________________________________________
Step 2: Conduct a database search on Academic OneFile or JSTOR using the above keywords and try to find a journal article that can help answer your question. Use information from your results to try and refine you search.
Note: You may have to filter your search to find the type of results you are looking for- in this case, journal articles.

What new information did you find that could help you modify your search results?
________________________________________________________________________________
________________________________________________________________________________
________________________________________________________________________________

Step 3: Rephrase your search. If your keywords do not produce results that can help answer your question, try using synonyms or related terms.

What synonyms or related terms can you come up with for your keywords? Write at least 3 below.
________________________________________________________________________________
________________________________________________________________________________

Reflection:
After conducting your search, do you think your question is appropriate for research? Why or why not? If you have modified or refined your research question, include your new question here.
________________________________________________________________________________
________________________________________________________________________________
________________________________________________________________________________

Remember to cite your sources in MLA format using the database citation tools